You're welcome. Actually Lili, I've been meaning to email you about a couple of other sign issues.

Dudleya Trail (that heads down to the beach from Catalina Trail) has no marker or sign indicating the name of the trail. At the junction of those two trails, there ought to be a Carsonite sign (flexible trail marker with decals) showing people "Dudleya Trail" with an arrow toward that trail down to the beach. On the flip side, for people coming up from the beach, the marker should show "Catalina Trail" with a double arrow showing that trail going east & west. I attached a photo of a typical trail marker we use elsewhere in the Preserve – it may not be the best photo example of one of our trail markers, but it gives you the idea. These Carsonite trail markers are used in many places in the Ocean Trails Reserve already.

Also, I had a report that Coastal Switchback Trail (at the junction with Catalina Tr.) has no sign saying No Animals Permitted on the Beach or in the Ocean like the other trails to the beach have. I have attached a photo sample of that sign.

Finally, I had communicated a couple of times with Angel regarding repairing a downed post & cable fence at the junction of Catalina and Gnatcatcher Trails, but I haven't heard anything. I don't know if he has had a chance to repair that fence or not.

All of these items I've mentioned here have originated as complaints from the public. There are many other issues we need to confer about at some point, but for now, I thought I would just bring them to your attention a couple at a time.

Thank you for your attention about these things and I will proceed in responding to those vandalized signs you told me about. Take care. ---Dave

Hi Lili. Thank you for letting me know about this. I have gotten a couple of reports that signs were hit with graffiti along Catalina Trail, but I have not had a chance to take a look in person. I understand one of them is a Preserve Rules sign (we have replacements on hand that we can install ourselves, if we cannot clean it off).

The picture you sent: that sign I think is an old one and I'll try and track down the source and a possible replacement assuming it cannot be cleaned. It may take a bit of time to replace that sign, so I'm thinking of taking off the vandalized one there on the post now to remove the unsightly graffiti. I think I will try to get over there on Monday to remove that sign temporarily and also check on the other signs with graffiti.

Hi Dave,
Hope you are well!
I received this pic from one of our residents.
Would you know how we can get this specific sign replaced? I am not too familiar with this particular sign.
Thank you!
